OpenLearn | Free learning from The Open University

The Open University

Statement of participation

Guest user

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

The African diaspora: an archaeological perspective

With a focus on slavery, this 4-hour free course explored how archaeology can contribute to the study of the African diaspora.

Issue date: 14 March 2022

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification.
This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner.

Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:
https://www.open.edu/openlearn/history-the-arts/history/the-african-diaspora-archaeological-perspective/content-section-0

COURSE CODE: A251_1

OpenLearn | Free learning from The Open University

The Open University

The African diaspora: an archaeological perspective

https://www.open.edu/openlearn/history-the-arts/history/the-african-diaspora-archaeological-perspective/content-section-0

Course summary

--- Please note: This is course is due to be archived on Wednesday 21st December. You can study the course up until this date. For learners who have completed the course, the Statement of Participation will remain in your learner records in your OpenLearn profile. --- In many ways the African diaspora is a contentious episode from the past (and indeed present). This free course, The African diaspora: an archaeological perspective, explores why this area of research has been traditionally under-represented and highlights the ways in which archaeology can contribute to this fast-growing field of study.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- understand the modern academic approaches to the study of African slavery
- show an awareness of the links between archaeology and related academic disciplines, such as history, in the study of the past
- understand the classification of different forms of slavery in the past.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Section 1

Why study slavery through archaeology?

Section 2

What is slavery?