Building confidence in using online learning forums

Trailer

SPEAKER:

Building confidence in using online learning forums. There are many online forums on the web which are used for many different purposes. This free course will build your confidence as an online student or learner in using online learning forums. This includes any which you use as part of your learning and study online.

In such forums, you will be developing your ideas and understanding about the topics you are studying, alongside other online learners. You may also use an online learning forum to ask questions about the content of your study, which may be answered by an online tutor, by your fellow students, or indeed by both.

This free course will build your confidence in posting to online learning forums and will help you to understand the value and benefits of participating in them with other online learners. The course will develop your understanding of why and how using online learning forums can be an important and rewarding part of your learning. Finally, it will also guide you towards seeing writing on them as something to be enjoyed.
