So, you want to work in esports – What is your current job and who do you work for?

LEYLA SABET:

In my current job, I'm the Head of Education at Estars, a leading educational esports company. As part of my role, I've developed structured programs and courses all about the esports industry.

Esports is growing so fast, and I really believe that as educators, we have the responsibility to give students the knowledge and skills they'll need if they want to work in this field. That's why I've been creating a whole suite of courses, so students have a clear pathway to learn about the industry and all the different roles it offers.
