So, you want to work in esports – What did you study and how did you progress into your role?

LEYLA SABET:

I always knew I wanted to be a teacher, so choosing a BEd in education was a really easy decision. I then went on to teach and lead in a range of schools in both the UK and Dubai. In 2020, I had a little boy and decided to take some time out of full time teaching. And that's when I was lucky enough to start working with Estars.

I loved what they were doing from the moment I discovered them, and I was really lucky to have the opportunity to develop these wonderful Esports courses. I really enjoy that students can learn about something they're genuinely interested in and love helping people understand that Esports is so much more than just gaming.
