So, you want to work in esports – What is the highlight of your job/biggest achievement?

LEYLA SABET:

There are so many highlights. I'm really lucky to work with an amazing team, all people passionate about bringing esports to the forefront. And I've also learnt so much from the industry experts that I've worked with along the way.

Creating the BTEC was a huge achievement. I was especially proud when on our first Pearson visit, the standards verifier said that what we had created was great and that we should be commended for our approach. And then recently, we won an award for that BTEC, which was a very exciting and special moment.

I'm also really proud of the certificates we've created. And recently, we launched that CPD program in partnership with the Open University, the first of its kind for teachers, which I wrote. And that's something else that I'm really proud of.
