USING UCAS FOR UK UNIVERSITY APPLICATIONS

Unlike many other countries, universities in UK require students who apply for undergraduate programmes to do this through the Universities and Colleges Admission Service (UCAS) Hub.

The diagram that follows illustrates an indicative annual timeline illustrating the stages of an application process. UCAS allows students from over 200 countries (including Myanmar) to apply to multiple Universities through one application and provides guidance on the requirements. You can normally apply for up to five different Universities and courses through this process. Note that for post graduate or part time study you will probably need to apply direct to the College or University via its admission website.

If you are applying for a university place in the UK, then you should familiarise yourself with the procedures for applying through the UCAS. In order to start your application, you need to register with the UCAS Hub and then you can proceed with your application:
